A blessed life is one without problems or pain.

A blessed life is when you can flourish in spite of your problems or pain.

The blessed person does not walk in the path of sin. The blessed man flourishes when the Word of God moves from an obligation to a delight, and from a devotional practice to a transformed mind.

Time is mine. I control it. I get to use it my way.

Time is God's. He controls it. I get to use it His way.

God controls time so I will...

God gives me time so I will...

God created days and seasons so I will...

Intention does not determine our direction.

The principle of the path:
our direction determines our destination

The principle of sowing and reaping:
we always reap what we sow

The principle of submission:
divine direction begins with submission

There is a disconnect between our religious devotion to God and the way we love people.

We often love people for our sake, and not for their sake.

God tell us to love people for their sake, not for ours.
